

OUR MISSION

To positively impact local communities across the United States by protecting and promoting accessible, affordable and engaging municipal golf courses.

OUR VISION

Enrich communities and the lives of local citizens by leading the revitalization of affordable, accessible, and high-quality municipal golf facilities and green spaces.

OUR WORK

In addition to the the Nation’s Capital Project, National Links Trust is undertaking initiatives like the Jack Vardaman Workforce Development Program, Fridays on the Green, and course improvement projects.

Nationally, we help to educate stakeholders on best practices through the Municipal Golf Network Program and the Symposium on Municipal Golf.

NATION’S CAPITAL PROJECT

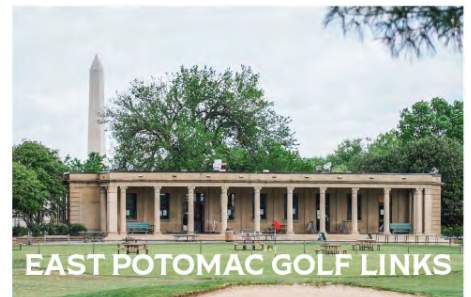

National Links Trust is undertaking the restoration and renovation of three sister properties in the nation’s capital: Rock Creek Park Golf, Langston Golf Course, and East Potomac Golf Links.

ROCK CREEK PARK GOLF

LANGSTON GOLF COURSE

EAST POTOMAC GOLF LINKS

Originally designed by golden age architect, William Flynn, Rock Creek

Park Golf will be renovated under the direction of Gil Hanse. The finished facility will be home to a nine-hole course paying homage to Flynn’s design, a par 3 course, driving range, and restaurant for all members of the community.

Opened in 1939 as a course for Black golfers to play in the age of segregation,

National Links Trust’s renovation will honor the history and showcase the future of Black golf. The finished facility will include an 18-hole course designed by Beau Welling, driving range powered by Toptracer, and innovative Black golf museum.

East Potomac was designed as a “model municipal playground” by golden age architect, Walter Travis in the early 1900s. Tom Doak will lead the restoration project. The finished facility will include a reversible 18-hole course, executive-length 9-hole course, par-3 course, driving range, restored miniature golf course, and golf academy.
